

J Hill Interiors Celebrates 10 Years In Coronado

by Christine Johnson

Jessica Tompane is the owner and principal designer of J Hill Interiors, Inc. in Coronado. Not only are she and her former Navy SEAL husband celebrating their ten-year wedding anniversary, but J Hill Interiors just enjoyed a landmark accomplishment of 10 years as an interior design business in Coronado.

"J Hill is known for their timeless, diverse and layered designs," said Tompane. "We have five designers on staff who each bring a different talent to the mix in our company. They are experienced designers on their own and bring an inherent set of knowledge from various aspects of design and building. When a client hires us they have the experience of a team with construction, interior design, estate, and refurbishment backgrounds. We pride ourselves in being able to work together to bring visions to life for our clients. We truly make each other stronger on each project. This is priceless for any project big or small."

Tompane and her team are currently working on several different projects throughout Coronado and other parts of California, including a 12,000 square foot estate in La Jolla.

J Hill is not just a San Diego design team, however. They have taken on projects throughout the state and country. Past locations have included Beverly Hills, Los Altos, La Jolla in California, and in Dublin, Ohio and Texas.

When it comes to various designs, Tompane and her designers have a comfort level in all designs. Coastal, traditional, contemporary, downtown lofts or Spanish style homes have all been part of the J Hill projects. The demographic of the families

J Hill Interiors stretches from 30 to 70 years old, mostly second homes or vacation homes.

"We have staked our claim on versatility and timelessness with our work," said Tompane. "We take pride in being able to deliver a down-to-earth, warm luxury to our clients that brings them the personal touches they are looking for. No matter what the project, we take pleasure in what we are designing with our families, and enjoy seeing the reaction to their new home when we are finished."

Tompane takes a great sense of accomplishment in her work after 10 years in business. She feels that her business has especially grown as a company over the last two years. Currently, she has chosen to focus on the business development of the company, leading from behind her staff of talented designers.

"I enjoy empowering people and providing jobs and internship opportunities to such talented and deserving people, some more talented than myself," said Tompane.

J Hill Interiors has been one of the lucky companies that has continued to stay busy and grow during the Covid pandemic. Tompane attributes that to the fact that people are spending more time at home and have decided this is the time to remodel, add on or refurbish parts of their homes. She feels lucky J Hill Interiors has kept busy and that she and her staff can continue to work through this difficult time.

Tompane and her family are proud to call Coronado home and also be a part of giving back to the community. Jessica and her team have volunteered in the past with Generate Hope and are hoping to engage with them more in 2021, along with other non-profit organizations that involve the interior design industry and giving back to others. Generate Hope assists female trafficking survivors over the age of 18 with a recovery program providing housing, therapy, and a learning center.

As for the 10 year anniversary for J Hill, Tompane is quick to note where her successes can be attributed. "Thank you to everyone who has supported J Hill over the years. We appreciate our friends, families, mentors, employees, fellow professionals, and industry partners. It has been a wonderful and blessed journey."

Additional Water Quality Testing Approved For Coronado

The San Diego County Board of Supervisors agreed to approve and fund the collection of daily ocean water quality samples at Avenida Lunar. Testing began Saturday, Oct. 31.

The County Department of Environmental Health will sample every weekday, except Tuesday. The City of San Diego will continue to sample that day. Samples will be collected daily except during a general rain advisory or where sampling becomes a health and safety risk.

The City may see an increase in advisories due to the expanded testing but observational closures will be no longer be made due to current test results that will confirm or deny actual contamination. The public can continue to check SDbeachinfo.com for water quality status updates to these specific sites. Coronado continues to sample North Beach weekly as part of its Swimmable Water Program and posts the sampling results. In addition, the City has a North Beach water quality status icon on the County webpage.
